

Roy Boswell Three Waterdale Gardens

30.9.-10.10.2021

It's autumn
and the festival is over and all the producers are driving all the artists to the airports the museum is closing and the invigilators want to lock the doors and turn out the lights and go home

the library is closing and the librarians are dreaming of having a bath before bed or a hot drink maybe with pumpkin spice, or a mug of cocoa

and the gallery is closing and the unpaid work experience wants to leave and get the train because it's a long wait until the next one

and you don't have to go home but you can't stay here

Roy Boswell is an artist from Helsinki whose work often deals with language or the amassing of vocabularies; using a wide range of forms of expression including text, performance, sculpture, sound and music composition – sometimes intermingling and hard to separate from one another. His exhibition Three Waterdale Gardens deals with themes of attachment to physical spaces, and letting them go.
